

International Congress on Integral Cities

Co-Creating the Cities of the Future, Now

Reus – Catalonia. November 17-18, 2017

Transforming the world through cities

How can we evolve into a prosperous, sustainable and harmonious world?
We need a new collective consciousness, vision and action that can respond to the enormous challenges that exist in all human and natural scales.

A healthy city is the one that continually creates and improves its physical and social environments and extends community resources that allow people to mutually support themselves in the realization of all the functions of life and develop to the full potential.

World Health Organization

Cities, and their eco-regions, are small worlds of human scale where we live, learn, love, consume, suffer, work, enjoy... and interact intensively by sharing the culture, what connects us as a community and to the world.

The purpose of the congress is to develop a new way of understanding cities and their potential for transformation, expanding the capacity for individual and collective action.

Who is it for?

To you, wanting to be the protagonist of a collective and regenerative social change as activist, businessman, researcher, politician, public servant, professional, student, artist, communicator, educator...
To you, having an open mind and being curious to create with others a better future for people and the planet.

The three pillars of the congress

INSPIRATION

A group of passionate experts from all over will share their wisdom and experience to provoke us and inspire us to think outside our usual frame of reference towards a new vision of cities

CONNECTION

We will establish significant relationships with other people based on shared interests and values that will enable us to become part of a community of city-world transformers

CO-CREATION

We will participate in a co-learning and experimentation environment with participants designing and co-creating real visions and actions for the city that can serve the future
